

When Edward H. Gersowitz, Andrew L. Libo and Jeff S. Korek became law partners in 1992, little did they realize that 15 years later they would build one of the most prestigious personal injury and medical negligence firms in the states of New York and New Jersey.

The firm represents consumers in significant personal injury claims, involving construction and motor vehicle accidents and medical negligence matters, and has achieved an enviable record of multimillion-dollar verdicts and settlements on behalf of its clients.

A LEADER AMONG TRIAL ATTORNEYS

Relying upon partners Ed Gersowitz, Andrew Libo, Michael Fruhling, as well as the rest of the office's hands-on dedicated legal team, Jeff Korek has recently taken the reins as the youngest president of the prestigious and influential New York State Trial Lawyers Association.

Jeff grew up in a rough neighborhood in Brooklyn,

New York. "I saw a lot of people who couldn't fight for themselves," he remembers. "I wanted to be able to help them." He was the first member of his family to go to college. When he graduated, he chose law school because he knew he could be an advocate for others. "I love getting to know our clients, and helping them through the tragedies that have changed their lives," Korek says.

Gersowitz Libo & Korek, P.C. maintains its New York offices in the prestigious Trinity Building located in downtown New York City. The firm also has an office in Englewood, New Jersey. In fact, the firm recently recorded the highest settlement for a medical negligence case in Morris County, New Jersey.

Gersowitz Libo & Korek, P.C. prides itself on its absolute commitment to the clients it serves.
